⁹¹ From the prior textbook (Ayers, American Passages). Recession in 2001 and a) Fed. Reserve lowers interest rate; b) Bush administration does tax cuts; c) lenders did "teaser loans" to get people to borrow for homes; packaging of loans of mixed quality sold to banks/financial institutions (page 880), with the less secure loans "dubbed 'subprime.'" The housing loans crashed; by early 1980 the banks began to fail. Since globalization works as it does, the shaky economy spread. Result at end of Bush administration: a) "huge national debt" b) "shrunken manufacturing base" c) "economy without the resources needed for a quick rebound." (Page 881). – Also see the description on 1148-1149 of the Essentials textbook that precedes the paragraph typed below.

⁹² "On October 3, 2008, just before the Presidential election, President Bush signed into law a bank bailout fund called the Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP), which called for the Treasury Department to spend $700 billion to keep big banks and other large financial institutions from collapsing. Yet the passage of the bill did little to restore confidence. In early October [2008] with the onset of the what came to be called the Great Recession, which technically lasted from December 2007 to January 2009, and forced almost 9 million people out of work. But its effects would last long thereafter. The economic recovery that began in June 2009 would be the weakest since the end of the Second World War. 'The Age of the Prosperity is over,' announced the prominent Republican economist Arthur Laffer in 2008." (p. 1150) Laffer is the creator of the Laffer curve.

⁹⁸ "The United States, home to the world's costliest health system, was spending 18 percent of its total economic resources on health care. Great Britain, Norway, and Sweden each spent half as much, but their citizens lived longer, American was the only rich nation without a national healthcare program. Since 1970, the proportion of uninsured people had been steadily rising along with health care costs. In 2010 roughly 50 million Americans, 16 percent of the population, had no health insurance, most of them being either poor or young, or people of color." (page 1152)

⁹⁹ Attempted to prevent the meltdown that occurred before by these changes that regulated banks and lenders. Also set up a new agency for consumer-financial protection. (page 1154)

¹⁰⁷ The national debt is not specified in the section on the Bush term of 2000-2008, when the TARP crisis occurred. The general statement made is that George W. Bush “pushed through Congress a series of tax cuts, that, the White House said, were designed to assist the struggling economy. The budget surplus of the 1990s soon disappeared as a brief recession followed the end of the dot-com bubble. Record debt became one continuing legacy of the Bush era.” (page 872).
