

Example of 1 of 2 Ways You May Cite in This Course: Footnotes

Last Name: < > First Name: < > Class Start Time: <##:##> <Yellow = something you enter.

Teach Essentials of <Notice the word Teach. Replace with title in instruction sheet>

Tip to You about Footnotes for Citation in This Example: This example shows footnotes made automatically with Microsoft Word, with Microsoft's instructions provided in this course. The instructions for each paper cover exact words for citation. The word Begin starts the example. You see the footnotes:

- In the body of the paper, you can see each of the superscripts beginning with ¹ and ending with ⁶.
- If you hover over a superscript, you can see its footnote with its exact words from the instructions.
- If you click Ctrl-End or scroll to the bottom, you can see the all footnotes in numerical order ¹ to ⁶.

Begin with a brief sentence introducing what the whole paper covers, such as how laws or a part of foreign policy changed from the beginning to the end of the period. (Tip: Write what you would say aloud to another first year student. Be simple.) In this first paragraph, use the earliest primary (the first one in the folder of primaries) and at least 1 textbook page for this time period listed in the instructions. Make a correct citation (footnote or inline) to a textbook page about Primary 1.¹ Make a correct citation (footnote or inline) to a page of Primary 1.² (Tip: In all paragraphs, write so words make common sense. You may cite the Primary and then its textbook page or vice versa. You may use more than one textbook page or Primary page.)

Make a simple, short transition sentence to introduce the new paragraph and to show how the evidence fits together. In this second paragraph, use Primary 2 and at least 1 textbook page appropriate for Primary 2. Make a correct citation (footnote or inline) to a page of Primary 2.³ Make a correct citation (footnote or inline) to a textbook page about Primary 2.⁴

Make another simple, short transition sentence for this paragraph. In this third paragraph, use Primary 3 and at least one textbook page appropriate for Primary 3. Make a correct citation (footnote or inline) to a page of Primary 3.⁵ Make a correct citation (footnote or inline) to a textbook page appropriate for the 3rd primary.⁶ Make a simple, short closing sentence on what the whole paper covered. (Cautions: Do not introduce new facts in that closing sentence. Also, make sure all footnotes are on this page. If needed, delete some of your words.)

¹ Kennedy, Cohen, and Piehl, American Pageant, 187.

² Monroe, "Transcript of Monroe Doctrine," 1.

³ T. Roosevelt, "Corollary to Monroe Doctrine," 2.

⁴ Kennedy, Cohen, and Piehl, American Pageant, 468.

⁵ F. Roosevelt, "Address at Chautauqua," 1.

⁶ Kennedy, Cohen, and Piehl, American Pageant, 572