

Past_and_Future_Experience_with_Writing

Sometimes it easier to make history standards make sense by asking “Would you do these things if it was a job where someone paid you money for what you did?”

1. Write that something was true without knowing exactly where you found that fact and all the other facts so you could show the boss or whoever demanded to know your proof?
2. Write more pages than requested?
3. Type lots of quotations?
4. Write in a different format than the example?

FYI: History standards are really work/evidence/reality standards. This class follows history standards, but it tries to provide assignments in history that help you practice skills needed for varied parts of your future:

- In the world of work (where writing has to be useful enough that someone is willing to pay you to write something)
- In situations where you have to figure out what is true and what you should do.
